Grow a Caring Community
Go Share the Everlasting Gospel

WELCOME

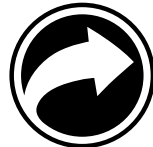

In the nineteenth century, Karl Marx wrote about capitalism’s tendency to destroy the sacred - “All that is sacred must be profaned.” With his Enlightenment mentality he believed that life should be entirely de-sanctified. With his militant atheism, Marx did not see this as a negative development and even that it would provide for the condition of equality. This of course comes from the denial that spiritual values and ideas actually elevate humanity and that these can be more precious than life itself. Before we point our fingers at Karl Marx as the problem, let’s talk through what the prophetic work in the book of Daniel might say to us. Welcome to Campion.
