Welcome

The story for mountain climbing this year comes from the world's most famous and highest peak, Mount Everest. It's a tragic narrative. The deaths of climbers on the mountain this year is double that of last year, 11 so far and the latest actually being a Colorado resident. In answering the question that everyone is asking (why?), but the first answer comes as a surprise, overcrowding at the top. Approximately 600 (guides and climbers) were expected to try this year, resulting in times when there is a queue along the highest sections forcing climbers to endure the altitude longer than before. There is another mountain that you are invited to climb, one without queue or crowd...there is room at the cross for you. May this Sabbath and this summer find you there. Welcome to Campion.
