Welcome

Paul Mills, a professor of family medicine and public health, wondered if a positive mental attitude is good for your heart. So he did a study. He recruited 186 people, average age 66, who already had some damage to their hearts. He had them fill out a questionnaire and did blood tests to measure inflammation, the body's natural response to injury, or plaque buildup in the arteries.

The result: He found lower levels among those who were grateful - an indication of better heart health. It turns out that gratitude not only helps your soul; it restores your heart. May your heart be restored as we give thanks to our loving God today. Welcome to Campion.

Our Mission

We serve and glorify God through Christ-centered worship, individual spiritual growth,
youth involvement,
and
community interaction.
